MORE TO COME FROM AWARD-WINNING SERIES Blackstone 'Green Lit' for Season 2

Edmonton, Alberta (May 31, 2011) -- Prairie Dog Film + Television is thrilled to announce a second season of Blackstone has been 'green lit' and is now in full development. Producers received the news on the eve of Blackstone winning three Rosies at the Alberta Film & Television Awards on May 28.

"It's an exciting time for Blackstone, and we're pleased with the response to the series," says Ron E. Scott, Executive Producer, Writer and Director of Blackstone. "So far, the first season has earned a loyal audience, received great support from our broadcaster APTN, and garnered significant media acclaim."

Following the first season's cliffhanger finale, Season 2 of Blackstone will commence after the strip club shooting, and continue to delve into the tumultuous lives of the residents on the Blackstone Indian Reserve. Production of the new series will commence this summer, on location in Edmonton and rural Alberta.

THE ROSIES

The 37th annual Alberta Film & Television Awards (aka The Rosies) were handed out during a sold-out gala in Edmonton over the weekend. Celebrating excellence and outstanding achievement in Albertan film, television and new media, The Rosies honoured Blackstone with three awards:

- Best Production Reflecting Cultural Diversity
- Best Alberta Actress (Roseanne Supernault)
- Best Screenwriter Drama Over 30 (Ron E. Scott)

Blackstone was nominated in a total of nine categories at The Rosies. It has also been nominated in five categories at the 2011 Leo Awards, which take place June 11 in Vancouver.

ABOUT BLACKSTONE

Intense, compelling and confrontational, Blackstone is an un-muted exploration of power and politics on an Indian reserve. This award-winning one-hour television drama is unlike any other show in Canadian television.
